

Breed Standards for the Greenland Dog

|                     |   |
|---------------------|---|
| General Appearance: | The Greenland Dog, though slightly taller than the Eskimo Dog, is not so heavy.   |
| Tail:               | Bushy, curled over the back, is used to protect the face while sleeping so that all that can be seen are the small, triangular, pricked ears. |
| Coat:               | Moderately long, straight, thick, and stand-off, with a heavy undercoat.  |
| Size:               | Height is 22 – 25 inches and weight is 66 – 70 pounds.  |
| Color:              | All colors except albino.   |
| Temperament:        | Aloof and independent the breed can be affectionate with those it knows well and is devoted to its owners.                                    |